To participate in the DPF, businesses have to self-certify and comply with its principles and other requirements within three months. Privacy activist Schrems as well as others have voiced their concerns about the legality of the agreement, announcing their intentions to challenge it before the ECJ. The ECJ, which invalidated the two previous agreements, the Privacy Shield and the Safe Harbour, will assess the legality of the new DPF.